Come all you British heroes <sup>2</sup>,
I pray you lend your ears .
Draw up your British forces,
And then your volunteers.
We're going to fight the Yankee <sup>3</sup> boys
By water and by land,

Chorus - And we will never return til we conquer sword in hand.

We're the noble lads of Canada
Come to arms, boys, come.

O now the time has come my boys ,
To cross the Yankee's line.
We remember they were rebels once ,
And conquered John Burgoyne<sup>4</sup>.
We'll subdue these mighty democrats
And pull their dwellings down,
And we'll have the States<sup>5</sup> inhabited
With subjects to the Crown<sup>6</sup>.

Cho.

We've as choice a British army
As ever crossed the seas.
We'll burn both town and city,
And with smoke becloud the skies.
We'll subdue the old green mountain, boys,
Their Washington<sup>7</sup> is gone.
And we'll play them Yankee Doodle
As the Yankees did Burgoyne.

Cho.

Now we've reached the Plattsburgh banks, my boys,
And here we'll make our stand,
Until we take the Yankee fleet
MacDonald hath command;
We've the "Growler"<sup>8</sup> and the "Eagle"<sup>9</sup>
That from Smith<sup>9</sup> we took away,
And we'll have their noble fleet
That lies anchored in the bay.

Cho.

<sup>2</sup> This ballad provides a re-telling of the Battle of Plattsburgh during the War of 1812, which occurred from November 6th to 11th, 1814. The battle marked the end of the final invasion of the northern United States by British forces. A combined land and naval assault under the command of British General Sir George Prévost (land forces) and Captain George Downie (naval squadron) attacked the town of Plattsburgh on Lake Champlain. The United States naval forces under the command of Master Commandant Thomas Macdonough defeated the British naval squadron, and the British ground forces retreated soon after under pressure from United States troops led by Brigadier General Alexander Macomb.
